Located in desirable destinations, each hotel has its own individual character, timeless architecture and special history. Our desire for each guest is to provide and encourage new discoveries which will help make every experience with us uniquely their own.

Brand Heritage

In 1932 Conrad N. Hilton wrote "The Greatest of Them All" onto a photograph of The Waldorf Astoria in New York City. It was his dream to own this hotel and include it in his prestigious collection of hotels. In 1949 he realized his dream and extended his version of "the light and warmth of hospitality" to the legendary New York landmark. Today, the hotel is the inspiration for the distinctive hotels of the Waldorf Astoria Collection where discovery and unique experiences are inherent in some of the most desirable destinations around the world.

The Collection Today

The Waldorf Astoria Collection's hotels and resorts can be found around the world, with hotels and resorts in the United States, Europe and the Middle East.
